

Happy New Year to you all

As you know during the month of december I decided it was time to continue further research in the understandings of the Lifestream discoveries and the effects on the higher levels. I did have to take sometime away from the Hands on Transference process to work at my new research center here in Santa Monica. This time has proven to be very beneficial and has allowed me to update my website with some of my latest discoveries and projects in the works. The certified practitioners are getting rave reviews and I am happy to hear everyone has having great experiences.

Research Announcements

Zero Point Research has moved into the first level of grant possibilities through the Michael J. Fox Parkinson's Foundation.

The submissions started in December and needless to say we were one of the first to submit. We feel strongly that if we are able to present the Lifestream technology to this foundation we can show the incredible benefits that we can offer for those who suffer from this challenging disease. If you feel you can help us in this mission, please feel free to contact us or make a Donation today!.

Technology Research

We will be moving into various research projects that will benefit on various levels. Alternative Energy technology that benefits all types of combustion engines to offer a considerable fuel efficiency benefit that will attach to all types of vehicle currently in production.

The GEOSIS PROJECT will prove to have many associated technological benefits for our world and I feel that this year is the time to bring this forward.

Lifestream Announcements

What will be coming for 2007?

We are currently working on bringing out a newer level of technology that will be of course the next step in cellular science. This one promises to be a monumental leap in the understanding of our connection to the planet. Visit the website to keep informed!

Regenesis Events for 2007

Stay tuned for new events that are part of the Conscious Awareness Series for 2007. New guest speakers and special Lifestream Events!

Thank you for being interested in our technology and mission. Our mission is to raise ALL LEVELS of resonance of life and the planet!
